

Medication Information

Please read the information linked below. It contains important warnings from the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (“FDA”) in relation to medications you may be prescribed. If you have any questions, please speak to your provider or other licensed healthcare professional.

Please note that most medications prescribed through Neuday are compounded medications. While these medications are created exclusively in licensed pharmacies, their efficacy and safety cannot be directly compared to those of commercial drugs. It is important to discuss the specific risks and benefits associated with compounded medications with your provider. The following list of safety data is intended for your convenience and should not be used as a basis for assessing the safety and efficacy profile of any compounded medication.
